No conflict in sponsoring of coal meet-up, port argues

$5,000. Emails show port wanted reference to their donation killed on conference brochures

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

The port was happy to give the coal industry $5,000 and golf swag for its annual conference, but it didn't want to take credit for it due to "optics."

Leadership at Port Metro Vancouver backed the sponsorship of the Coal Association of Canada's September event, but said, "As a result of recent press and public backlash, we need to be less out-there," according to emails obtained through an access-to-information request by Voters Taking Action on Climate Change (VTACC).

The port is dealing with mounting concerns over a proposed coal-transfer facility at the Fraser Surrey Docks.

When the port found out the conference brochures listed it as a sponsor, it asked the coal association to delete the reference and even considered paying $3,000 to reprint the programs, according to emails.

According to director of trade development Katherine Bamford, attending industry conferences is one way the port executes its mandate to facilitate trade. It removed the branding not to hide anything but to "strike a balance between business priorities and community concerns," she said in a phone interview on Thursday. "We don't feel that there's any conflict at all."

VTACC director and UBC political science professor Kathryn Harrison strongly disagrees.

"I don't see how having their name removed ... is not misleading the public," Harrison said. "I just don't see how they can argue that."

Conflict of interest?

"If we have regulators that view their role as advocating for an industry, that's bad enough. If they're doing so secretly, that's even worse."

B.C. referendum needs a champion: Transit CEOs

Moving the Future. Former TransLink chief Tom Prendergast says he isn't surprised to see that funding problems remain

KATE WEBB
kate.webb@metronews.ca

The CEOs of the two largest transportation authorities in North America told a room full of business and transportation leaders on Thursday that if B.C.'s impending referendum on transit funding is to succeed, it's going to need a champion.

Tom Prendergast and Art Leahy urged optimism, despite the lean showing of hands when urban-planning guru Gordon Price asked the audience at the Moving the Future conference how many thought the referendum could succeed.

Leahy, who is the CEO of L.A.'s Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA), described how L.A. Mayor Eric Garcetti led the charge in 2008 on "Measure R." The ballot initiative secured funding for dozens of major transportation projects by drumming up 67 per cent popular support for raising the county sales tax by 0.5 per cent.

"The mayor held hay as the chief guy for all of L.A. County," Leahy said at the conference, which was organized by a wide swath of stakeholders including TransLink and the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

"He's the guy who met with the business groups, the U.S. secretary of transportation, the senators and everybody else."

Leahy described Measure R as a "contract with voters," and said Garcetti pulled it off by striking up an independent oversight task force to address concerns about accountability.

"We said to the taxpayers, give us a half a per cent of sales tax for 30 years and we'll give you this list of projects: 15 highway projects, 13 rail construction projects and a bunch of other things," he said.

Watching Leahy speak at the Vancouver Convention Centre were Surrey Mayor Dianne Watts, who is calling for $2 billion in funding for new light-rail lines south of the Fraser, and Mayor Gregor Robertson, who wants $3 billion for a rapid-transit line to UBC.

The B.C. government has been adamant that a referendum on transit funding will be held in conjunction with the November 2014 civic elections, despite the mayors' protestations it is doomed to fail.

Prendergast left his job as CEO of TransLink in 2009 to head up New York's MTA.

He said after four decades in the business he is not surprised to see the funding problems that plagued TransLink four years ago still stagnating.

"Every one of these systems where … you're trying to figure out how do you get sustainable revenue to run the place, you never get it on the first pass," he said.

"In very, very rare cases you get it on the second pass. It's repeated tries."

Kanye West cancels Van concert ... again

'Only room for one North West in his life.'
Label claims custom equipment damaged

EMILY JACKSON

Kanye West fans in the Pacific Northwest weren't impressed after the artist cancelled his Halloween concert at the last minute — the second Vancouver show he's cancelled in two weeks.

One fan flew to Vancouver for the show twice only to have her plans thrown out the window, according to Twitter, where Kanye faced a barrage of insults.

The rapper's label Island Def Jam blamed the cancellation on a car accident that ruined custom equipment, according to a statement posted by Rogers Arena.

A truck carrying the Yeezus Tour's video truss and 60-foot circular LED screen was in an accident on its way to Vancouver, damaging the equipment beyond repair.

"As a result of this event, it is impossible to put on the show and the Yeezus Tour will be postponed until these essential pieces can be re-engineered and refabricated."

Apparently, Kanye "will not compromise" on putting on the show unless it can be done the way he planned. The Vancouver, Denver and Minneapolis shows were all postponed.

The rapper was originally supposed to perform on Oct. 20, but cancelled that show the day of as well.

The following night, he proposed to girlfriend Kim Kardashian, mother of his daughter, North West, with an elaborate orchestra at a stadium he rented out in San Francisco.

Perhaps fans found some consolation in the social-media jokes surrounding Kanye's flakey relationship with Vancouver fans.

"#Kanye West only has room for one North West in his life. Unfortunately, that is not Vancouver #cancelled," @unberleyvable tweeted.

Human-trafficking case. Victim made up story to stay in Canada: Defence

A defence lawyer says the alleged victim in a human-trafficking case was so desperate to stay in Canada that she made up claims she was forced into domestic servitude.

The lawyer for Mumtaz Ladha, the woman accused of illegally bringing a young Tanzanian woman to Vancouver, is presenting closing arguments at the trial.

Eric Gottardi says there is little evidence to support allegations that Ladha tricked the young woman with a job offer and then forced her to work long hours with little pay, except for the alleged victim's testimony.

Gottardi says the testimony of the young woman, whose name is covered by a publication ban, was riddled with inconsistencies and lies, and she shouldn't be believed.

Armed with knife. Man arrested after police recover child from him

RCMP officers arrested a man causing a disturbance near an elementary school in Surrey on Thursday, after convincing him to release a child.

Police were called around 12:45 p.m. and arrived to find a 37-year-old male who is well known to police and who suffers from mental instability.

Cpl. Bert Paquet said in a statement that the man was holding the child and had a knife in his possession.

Officers talked the man into letting the child go, and he was arrested after being shocked with a conducted energy weapon.

Police say the child was not injured.

Officers are looking into whether there was any connection between the man and the child.

Rant about trash, lights, potholes via text

Not to complain, but... the city is getting too many phone calls, would prefer if you sent a photo and text instead

If you find a crack in a Vancouver sidewalk, soon you'll be able to complain without speaking to a human.

The city is looking for someone to develop a mobile smartphone app for its 311 services. As it stands, it runs a 311 call centre that's open 365 days a year for citizens to dial in service requests.

Vancouver is playing catch-up with cities such as Calgary and Winnipeg, which already have apps that allow residents to snap photos of typical complaints and submit them directly to the city.

We love to complain

845,000

The call centre received 845,000 calls in 2012 — that's more than quadruple the 200,000 calls it got in its first year.

The city wants to introduce the new channel as 311 call volumes continue to expand since the service was consolidated in 2009, according to the request for proposals.

The call centre received 845,000 calls in 2012 — that's more than quadruple the 200,000 calls it got in its first year.

The most common issues reported in Vancouver are, in order, illegal dumping or abandoned garbage, burnt-out streetlights, surface-water flooding on the street and pothole repairs.

The mobile app is part of a larger strategy to make it easier for people to communicate with city hall.

Belize. Vancouverite living abroad stabbed to death in apparent robbery

Police in the Central American country of Belize are investigating the stabbing death of a Vancouver woman.

Officers were called to the ocean-front community of Consejo Shores on Tuesday night after neighbours reported a woman screaming.

Assistant Supt. Daniel Arzu of the Corozal Police Department said police had to use a ladder to access the two-storey home because the residence was locked up tight.

"Upon the police entering the building they saw this Caucasian lady lying face down on the floor in the living room in what appeared to be a pool of blood, with several multiple stab wounds to her neck and body," Arzu said in a telephone interview Thursday.

The woman has been identified as Patricia Lynn Nichiporowich, 57, of the Vancouver area.

Arzu said investigators believe the motive was robbery, but nothing appeared to have been taken from the home.

"There certainly was a home invasion."

He said the home hadn't been ransacked, likely because the neighbours chased the killers off before they had time to do much more than kill the woman.

Neither the neighbours nor police saw anyone leaving the home.

Nichiporowich had been living in the community with her partner for the last six months, Arzu said.

Police have determined the woman's partner travelled to Florida on Monday, the day before she was found murdered.

"We have since made contact with the Canadian Embassy here in our country and have been advised that she has an only son who will be arriving in the country this Sunday. At that point he might determine what action he will take," Arzu said referring to funeral plans.

‘Crisis’ in B.C. ER rooms: Union

Nurses overwhelmed. Union prez relays stories from crowded hospitals, calls for immediate change to HR issues

MATT KIELTYKA
matt.kieltyka@metronews.ca

The British Columbia Nurses Union conjured up tales of horror on Halloween Thursday, all devoid of tricks or treats.

Union president Debra McPherson addressed media, saying that the situation in Fraser Health emergency rooms has reached its breaking point.

She said one nurse was responsible for taking care of 11 patients at Surrey Memorial’s new state-of-the-art emergency room.

In Abbotsford, a pediatric psychiatric patient was in the ER for four days waiting for a ward bed.

A dying man at Eagle Ridge was read his last rights in the hallway surrounded by strangers.

A patient with a contagious superbug was able to freely wander around the emergency room hallway and even stopped into the Tim Horton’s at Royal Columbian.

All of these incidents, the union says, have occurred in the last two weeks.

“Fraser Health emergency rooms have been a mess for some time now but these are all from the last couple of weeks,” said MacPherson. “Nurses have been fried to a crisp. There are many complaints. They’re calling in tears in the middle of their shift. Emergency rooms are in crisis.”

The union wants human resource issues, like unfilled vacancies, dealt with immediately, and is calling for provincial funding and more specialized training for nurses to pave the way for long-term solutions.

Even Surrey’s new emergency room — five times bigger than the previous one — is over-capacity and understaffed a month after opening, MacPherson claims.

Dr. Anne Clarke, medical director for emergency care at Fraser Health, praised nurses for their care and passion, and admitted patient intake in Surrey has been higher than normal. “Normally we see 240 to 260 (patients) a day,” said Clarke. Lately, “we’ve been up as high as 360,” she said.

Clarke said the increase can be attributed to the time of year and patients going to Surrey instead of other hospitals.

Despite the increased demand, she believes Surrey’s 57,000 square-foot ER does have the capacity to deal with patients.

Fraser Health also issued a statement addressing the HR issues the union raised.

“Over the past three years, Fraser Health has added more than 1,000 new nurses across the region, and over that same time we have invested more than $10 million in specialty education for hundreds of our nurses. We continue to work with the BC Nurse’s Union to address issues that are important to our nursing staff.”

The authority says a number of strategies have been implemented to ease congestion, though it remains an on-going process.

The BCNU claims that Fraser Health emergency rooms are in a state of “crisis.”

Kenyan women demand justice for rape victim

Rally protests teen's gang-rape. Police freed suspects after making them cut grass as punishment

Hundreds of women in Kenya are protesting after a teenager was allegedly gang-raped and the only punishment for the suspects was that they had to mow the police station lawn.

About 300 women marched through Kenya's capital on Thursday to protest the alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl publicly identified only as Liz.

The attack

The girl was attacked and repeatedly raped after returning from her grandfather's funeral in June, according to BBC News.

- She was thrown, unconscious, into a nearly seven-metre-deep pit latrine and suffered broken bones and spinal injury, the report said.
- When she was rescued hours later by villagers, she said she had been attacked by a gang of six men, but she could only identify three of them, the report added.

The online activist group Avaaz says Liz was gang-raped in June and she is now wheelchair-bound. The group says police arrested the suspected perpetrators but only made them cut grass at the police station as punishment.

More than 1.3 million people have signed an Avaaz petition calling for the prosecution of the alleged rapists and an investigation of the police who freed the suspects.

One protester, Fanis Lisegali, noted that Liz now suffers from health problems, including a fistula. Lisegali said he wants the government to ensure that justice is carried out. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Remains of 360 people dug from Bosnia mass grave

Two decades after Serb soldiers conducted house-to-house searches in a campaign of ethnic killings in Bosnia, forensic scientists are digging up what could turn out to be the largest mass grave from the 1992-95 war.

So far, the remains of 360 people have been found at the Tomasica mass grave discovered in September near the northern town of Prijedor, far more than expected, authorities said Thursday. The number is expected to rise and could one day surpass the 629 bodies found at Crni Vrh in Srebrenica.

The Missing Persons' Institute said the Tomasica grave is linked to a secondary one found in 2003 about 10 kilometres away, where 373 bodies were extracted. Authorities believe the killers moved parts of the remains from one grave to the other to hide the crime. In some cases, remains from the same person have been found in both graves.

Institute official Mujo Begic said the bodies are of Bosniak and Croat men, women and children killed in their villages during the war. Most of the victims were killed in their villages but teams have also found bullets in the grave, which indicates this was also an execution site, prosecutor Eldar Jahic said.

Near the grave, Vahida Behlic, 51, was sobbing as she watched forensic experts carefully lifting bones from the site, where skeletons were piled on top of each other. She thinks one of the skeletons could be of her mother, who was 60 when Serb soldiers came, dragged her out of the basement and shot her in front of her house.

"I heard the story from a witness who survived because his own grandmother threw herself on him and covered him with her body," she said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ford 'crack video' in police hands

Bombshell. Footage could go public amid court proceedings involving Toronto mayor's friend

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

An associate of Toronto Mayor Rob Ford is heading to court Friday morning on an extortion charge that may give the public its best shot at seeing the infamous "crack video."

Toronto police Chief Bill Blair announced Thursday the force had recovered the video from a hard drive seized during "Project Traveller," a guns-and-drugs investigation, on June 13.

He said the video is "consistent" with media reports. The video allegedly shows the "mayor, obviously impaired, smoking what appears to be crack cocaine and making homophobic and racist slurs," reports said.

Police technical experts recovered the video after it had been deleted from a hard drive and gave it to investigators on Oct. 29. As a result, Alexander (Sandro) Lisi, Ford's friend and occasional driver, was charged with extortion. Police accuse him of "extortive efforts to retrieve a recording" of the video since April.

Blair said the video will be submitted to court as evidence in this case, making it part of the public record. Media can request copies. However, if Lisi pleads guilty before evidence is introduced, the video may not be made public.

Blair also said there is more than one video, and he has seen them.

"There were several video files relevant to this investigation, and two videos that are particularly relevant to this investigation," said Blair.

His announcement came shortly after the release of partially redacted court documents pertaining to Lisi's arrest for trafficking on Oct. 1.

The documents show police tailed Ford, who called Lisi often and frequently met with him. Police observed Lisi passing plastic bags and envelopes to Ford.

Staying put for now

Despite the pressure on Ford, municipal law makes no provision for his forced removal from office unless he's convicted and jailed for a criminal offence.

- "There's nothing we can do at this point," Ontario Municipal Affairs Minister Linda Jeffrey said.
- "The province has no power to remove anybody, and obviously we'd have to wait as the investigation unfolds as to next steps."

Lawyer decries 'botched' probe

A renowned lawyer who failed to have Rob Ford ousted from office accused Toronto police on Thursday of deliberately giving the embattled mayor a pass on his alleged drug use and ties to accused and convicted traffickers.

Following police assertions they were now in possession of a video showing Ford appearing to smoke crack cocaine, Clayton Ruby was scathing about the investigation.

"The police have either ignored or overlooked all the evidence against Ford," Ruby told The Canadian Press.

"I've never seen such a botched investigation, and I've seen thousands."

Ruby called it "inexplicable" police never searched Ford's car or home, or wiretapped his phone. THE CANADIAN PRESS

CSIS rapped for improper sharing

Detained. Montreal man claims he was tortured by Sudanese intelligence officials

Canada's spy agency inappropriately disclosed personal and classified information about a Montreal man while he was imprisoned in Sudan, says a federal watchdog.

In its annual report tabled Thursday, the body that reviews the activities of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service also says CSIS reported inaccurate and exaggerated information to partner agencies about Abousfian Abdelrazik's case.

Abdelrazik, 51, was arrested but not charged during a 2003 visit to see his ailing mother in Sudan.

While in Sudanese custody, he was interrogated by CSIS about suspected extremist links.

In its report, the Security Intelligence Review Committee found no indication that CSIS had asked Sudanese authorities to arrest or detain Abdelrazik.

However, in the months prior to his arrest abroad, CSIS did keep its foreign intelligence allies up to date on any fresh information gleaned from the investigation of Abdelrazik, who denies any involvement with terrorism.

The review committee also found that Sudanese authorities remained under the mistaken impression that Canada, including CSIS, had supported the original decision to arrest and detain Abdelrazik.

Abdelrazik, who has four children, finally returned to Montreal in June 2009. That same month, the Federal Court of Canada concluded CSIS was complicit in his 2003 detention.

Abdelrazik claims he was tortured by Sudanese intelligence officials during two periods of detention, but Canada says it knew nothing of the alleged abuse.

He is suing both the federal government and former foreign affairs minister Lawrence Cannon.

Rome: Activists clash with riot police over housing

Activists, some wearing Guy Fawkes masks, clash with Carabinieri police in riot gear during a demonstration in Rome on Thursday. Clashes between police and activists broke out during a demonstration by protesters demanding rights to have a home when police prevented the marchers from reaching a nearby location where a meeting between representatives from the government, regional authorities and city hall was taking place to discuss housing policies in the capital.

Moving on. Snowden now has tech job at Russian website, lawyer says

Anatoly Kucherena, a lawyer for former NSA systems analyst Edward Snowden, says his client has found a technical support job at a Russian website.

Kucherena told the RIA Novosti news agency Thursday that Snowden starts his new job on Friday. Kucherena declined to name the company that has hired Snowden but says it's a major Russian website.

The 30-year-old faces espionage charges in the U.S. for uncovering a mass surveillance scheme at the National Security Agency.

Party tensions set the tone for Conservative convention in Alberta

Tough times for the Tories. MPs and delegates have begun to arrive in Calgary amid political controversy

A cameraman adjusts his camera in the main hall at the Conservative convention in Calgary Thursday. JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A flood postponed their convention in the spring — now Conservatives are facing a deluge of political challenges as they gather in the party's heartland.

The ongoing Senate expenses scandal and allegations of a coverup at the most senior levels is expected to be a hot topic in the convention corridors, even if the upper chamber is not officially on the agenda.

The Conservative caucus and senior ranks have been wearied by the controversy. Some say they have felt broadsided by constant bursts of new information — including embattled Sen. Mike Duffy's latest revelation that the party paid $13,500 for his legal fees. That's in addition to the $90,000 the prime minister's chief of staff secretly gave to Duffy to repay contested living expenses.

But the roller-coaster ride in Ottawa hasn't appeared to put a damper on registrations for the convention.

MPs and delegates began streaming into the city Thursday, as registration opened at the Calgary stampede grounds — an area that was underwater during the June floods.

Party president John Walsh says despite the change in dates due to this spring's flooding in Alberta, he predicts a record 3,000 people will attend Stephen Harper's keynote speech Friday night. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Britain. Prosecutor enlivens phone-hacking trial with sexy allegation

In a blockbuster court declaration in Britain's phone-hacking trial, prosecutor Andrew Edis says two of Rupert Murdoch's senior tabloid executives — Andy Coulson and Rebekah Brooks — had an affair lasting at least six years.

The affair covered the period when she was editor of Murdoch's News of the World tabloid and Coulson was her deputy. Coulson later edited the same paper and then became a top media adviser to Prime Minister David Cameron.

Edis made the disclosure Thursday during Coulson and Brooks' trial on phone-hacking allegations, the first major criminal case to go to court in the hacking saga. Coulson, Brooks, and her husband, Charles, all deny the charges against them. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Engaging personality

STEPHANIE ORFORD
For Metro

Every Monday, from 4-5 p.m., Leo Ramirez sends Latin American music, interviews and commentary across the airwaves of CiTR 101.9 FM, all in Spanish.

Ramirez has been producing and hosting the show on a volunteer basis for 13 years, which now reaches about 25,000 Latin Americans living in Metro Vancouver. His topics run the gamut, including music, sports and politics, and give Ramirez a way of engaging with and giving back to his community.

"That's my passion," he said.

In his home country of El Salvador, Ramirez was news director of the three most popular national radio stations, but as the country's civil war raged on throughout the '80s, Ramirez received threats for his reportage from both the guerillas and government forces.

"It was very difficult to do journalism at the time," he said. "They didn't like me over there, so I had to come here."

Ramirez immigrated to Canada with his wife and three children in 1989.

At first, he worked as a cleaner, then, in 2000, he went back to school and earned his diploma in social work. Now, the volunteer journalist brings the same care and insight he shows engaging with the Latin American community to his day job as a program manager for the Downtown Eastside (DTES) Community Kitchens Project with the Greater Vancouver Food Bank Society.

There, he helps empower residents of the single-room occupancy (SRO) hotels in Vancouver's Downtown Eastside, many of whom live with mental illnesses and addiction. Ramirez helps residents plan and prepare nutritious meals ("I put an El Salvadoran touch in many of those recipes"), and has helped expand the number of community kitchens in the DTES to 26 from seven, which makes it possible for SRO residents to cook about 40,000 individual servings each year.

"It's a neighbourhood just like any other, with issues people face every day in other neighbourhoods," Ramirez said. "Everyone's trying to overcome their situation and become a better person."

"It's hard not to be happy when you're around Leo," said Kay Thody, who works alongside Ramirez at the food bank as communications director. "He has this Cheshire cat smile.

"He's one of those people that just has a way of bringing out the best in others."

Leo Ramirez is a volunteer journalist and produces a radio show for Latin Americans living in Vancouver. CONTRIBUTED

The dream of lazy people everywhere. Amazon set to deliver groceries to you

Online retailer Amazon is taking on supermarkets by delivering food directly to Canadians' doorsteps.

The retail giant, which built its business selling books and entertainment through the mail, launched its new grocery category Thursday, in what's certain to be an intensifying battle between grocers.

Amazon says the initial selection includes 15,000 nonperishable grocery products, like coffee, cereal and baby food, from a variety of brands.

The strategic move will make it tougher for the country's biggest grocers like Loblaws, Sobeys and Metro, who have been focused in the last few years on competing against U.S. big-box retailers like Target and Walmart.

1 Diploma-see? North Korea's Kim Jong-un received an honorary PhD from a private Malaysian university. The institution bestowed the leader with a doctor of economics degree. Dr. Kim will, no doubt, wield the title with a straight face while governing one of the world's most dysfunctional countries, but on the bright side, maybe now he can get another job.

2 Spy vs. spy. There was an outcry of shock and disbelief in Europe after discovering that the U.S. National Security Agency was listening in on high-ranking Spanish, German and French officials. Government spokespeople issued disapproving statements with words like "disgraceful," or "appalling," referring of course to the act of getting caught.

3 Mama say what? Just months after Kim Kardashian gave birth to her daughter, the reality star is thinking of posing for Playboy again. Apparently, she is eager to show all of those people that made fun of her weight gain that she is hot again. Way to go, Kimmy. It's nice to see those maternal instincts kicking in.

4 Here's lookin' at you. Employing eye-tracking technology that measures, in milliseconds, how long the eyes are fixed on certain spots, a new study revealed that men spent more time on women's bodies than their faces. Before this technology, scientists lacked conclusive proof as they relied solely on verbal information, which brings us to two conclusions: Men are perverts, AND liars. And people say we don't spend enough on education.

5 Oops. A teaching assistant at the University of Iowa sent her math students an email saying, "Hi Class, I attach the solutions for number 76 and 78." Instead, she accidentally sent nude pictures of her and a man pleasuring themselves. The images went viral immediately, but even more regrettable was that some students spent the entire night trying to figure out how those images could possibly add up to the square root of a prime number.

6 The pusher. A cat in the European Republic of Moldova had been travelling freely in and out of the local prison through a hole in a fence. Suspicious guards apprehended the feline and discovered two packets of cannabis attached to its collar. The cat's lawyer argued that it was prescribed for a medical condition, and drew a plea bargain in exchange for the whereabouts of a long sought-after bunny rabbit that had been hiding out nearby.

7 This week in music. In 1998, Cher became the first woman over 50 to have a No. 1 single in the U.K. with Believe. But when Cher does something, she goes all the way. The song hit No. 1 in another 22 countries as well. That was 15 years ago, and she probably has one left in her.

8 Walk on the Wild Side. This week, we lost rock 'n' roll pioneer Lou Reed, lead singer and songwriter for one of the greatest bands to barely sell any records, The Velvet Underground. 'They are tragically beyond our perception'

WIM VAN EGMOND
Photographer, 47, from Berkel en Rodenrijs, the Netherlands

What exactly is it?
This particular species forms a colony in the shape of a chain like a helix. I gathered this sample from the North Sea by the Dutch coast.

Why is taking photographs of plankton so important?
I'm basically shining a light on a world that we know very little about, but one that is so important to our existence. Diatoms produce almost half of the Earth's oxygen through photosynthesis in our oceans. What's more, diatoms and other plankton are the foundation of the food chain in the natural world. Their role in our lives cannot be understated, but since diatoms seem invisible to us, they are tragically beyond our perception.

You're a die-hard diatom fan ...
Yes, they are so wonderful and bizarre; with 25,000 different species of them, with no two individuals exactly alike, diatoms are an endless source of inspiration. This is the basis from which all life started. METRO

Synopsis

When Tim Lake (Domhnall Gleeson) turned 21 his father (Bill Nighy) lets him in on a family secret — he comes from a long line of time travellers. With visions of inter-dimensional travel in his head he does what any 21-year-old might do — use his unique ability to get a girlfriend. The object of his affections is Mary (Rachel McAdams), but to win her over he'll have to use his special gift to hone his Casanova skills. As they live their lives together he comes to discover that not everything can be solved with a quick trip back in time.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Running out of Time

About Time. Rachel McAdams continues to take on time travel movies but the latest seems to hit the right note with a sentimental approach

Richard: Mark, this is the kind of movie critics will call sappy and sentimental. They'll bash it because it wears its heart on its sleeve, which is exactly the reason I liked it.

After The Time Traveller's Wife it's time Rachel McAdams got a time travel romance right. It's a silly premise but for me the idea wasn't about the time travel, but the lessons Tim learns from the time travel about life and happiness. What did you think?

Mark: Richard, as you know, I am no fun. No fun at all. So I spent most of the movie looking for paradoxes in the physics of the time travel conceit. Like all time travel movies, it sets up arbitrary rules, and then breaks them all over the place.

The movie features two of the worst haircuts in the history of cinema, and a romance I didn't really care about. But there's another deeper movie in there, which is a movie about fathers and sons, and I liked that part very much. Sentimental? Yes, but I felt that part of the movie worked better than its rom-com components. Of course, it could have been the haircuts.

RC: I didn't actually care much about the romance angle or the time travel. I was drawn to the film because of Domhnall Gleeson's charming and slightly goofy performance.

If John Hughes had made British films he would have loved this guy. He does have a bad haircut, but I thought he was a charming, if unlikely, leading man. He has a way with a line and I felt there was a real arc to his character. He literally grows up and becomes a man on screen, which is something you don't see in rom-coms very often.

MB: True enough, although I always thought there should be a law barring gingers from appearing in television and film.

I liked a lot of the scenes in the movie, especially one set in one of those noir restaurants, where you eat in total darkness. It's a literal blind date, and a nice twist on "meeting cute." Bill Nighy is wonderful in the movie, as he always is, and Rachel McAdams does a good version of cute, although she looked about five years too old for the part.

But then Gleeson would go into a closet and ball his fists and ... some of the goodwill was lost for me.

RC: Richard E. Grant's three-minute cameo is almost worth the price of admission. He has one of the best reaction shots I've seen this year.

MB: And a similar hairline as Nighy. Hmmmm....

Director. Jimmy Hayward

Stars. Owen Wilson, Amy Poehler

A ridiculous series of events sends Reggie (Wilson) on a mission to stop his fellow fowl from being served at the first Thanksgiving and thus save millions of birds from becoming the centrepiece of the traditional meal for the rest of history. One should expect a certain level of unreality from a film about time-travelling turkeys. But Free Birds is so far-fetched and implausible that it's practically unwatchable. Even comedic favourites Wilson and Poehler can't breathe any life into the absurd plot.

Action

Ender's Game

Director. Gavin Hood

Stars. Asa Butterfield, Harrison Ford

According to Orson Scott Card's hit novel Ender's Game, the future of mankind rests on turning kids into extraterrestrial killing machines and cadet commander Harrison Ford has his sights set on one conflicted adolescent saviour. While the drama is solemnly serious and short on fun, the performances (especially young Asa Butterfield) are decent and the effects entertaining enough to likely keep many kiddies captivated. For the rest of us, Ender's Game is simply played out.

Comedy

Last Vegas

Director. Jon Turteltaub

Stars. Robert De Niro, Michael Douglas, Morgan Freeman and Kevin Kline

Take every cliché about ageing Lotharios, blend in barroom brawls, boobs and booze, add four ageing Academy Award winners doing embarrassing things and you have Last Vegas. The Flatbush Four childhood pals reunite in Vegas to celebrate one's marriage to a 32-year-old, but a woman of a more appropriate vintage (Mary Steenburgen) enters the picture, dividing the group. Cardboard characters deliver lines that sound hollow. Considering the talents involved it's a shame.

ANNE BRODIE

Drama

All the Wrong Reasons

Director. Gia Milani

Stars. Cory Monteith, Karine Vanasse

The characters in this Canadian drama suffer because of poor decisions made by others. The ensemble are linked by the discount store that employs them. Manager James' (Cory Monteith, in one of his final roles) and his wife Kate are estranged after Kate's sister commits suicide. James turns to cashier Nicole who resents Kate. Meanwhile Kate, who fears being touched, finds comfort talking to former firefighter Simon, an amputee. Writer-director Gia Milani navigates their lives with ease.

IAN GORMELY

Action

Man of Tai Chi

Director. Keanu Reeves

Stars. Keanu Reeves, Tiger Hu Chen

With Man of Tai Chi, director Keanu Reeves has made an entertaining genre movie that pays tribute to the past with a traditional story about honour and the discipline of martial arts. A practitioner of Tai Chi, Linhu (Tiger Hu Chen) is a humble man who becomes increasingly violent when he is recruited by businessman Donaka Mark (Reeves) to battle in an underground (and illegal) fight club. Reeves throws in a curveball or two, but it is essentially possible to draw a straight line between this story and the great kung fu movies of Bruce Lee.

RICHARD CROUSE

Biography

Diana

Director. Oliver Hirschbiegel

Stars. Naomi Watts, Naveen Andrews

Naomi Watts plays Princess Diana in the last three years of her life when she was separated from Prince Charles and romancing heart surgeon Dr. Hasnat Khan (Naveen Andrews). This uneven film feels like a Cole's Notes. I imagine the choppiness is supposed to portray the chaos that swirled around Diana, but instead presents as a disjointed montage. Combine that with clunky dialogue and the suggestion that Diana was the manipulator of the media that killed her and you have a film that plays like a National Enquirer exposé.

Documentary

Cutie and the Boxer

Director. Zachary Heinzerling

Stars. Ushio Shinohara, Noriko Shinohara

Few directors could intertwine mirth and melancholy like Zachary Heinzerling does in Cutie and the Boxer. Focused on the long-time marriage between octogenarian "boxing" painter Ushio Shinohara and his younger wife (also an aspiring artist), this documentary subtly interplays the power struggles of relationships and explores the sacrifices made in matrimony and art. Mostly for a modest movie however, it certainly says loads about love.

There's more to Loki than his mane of long black hair

Thor: The Dark World. Tom Hiddleston is OK with not reprising his role in the next Avengers because he's busy with other projects

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Tom Hiddleston returns as Loki next Friday in Thor: the Dark World.
CONTRIBUTED

Tom Hiddleston has made a name for himself as Thor's brother and main nemesis, with Thor: the Dark World marking his third big-screen turn as the Norse god of mischief. Hiddleston even showed up to Comic-Con this summer in character to delight fans during the Marvel presentation, though his character won't be appearing in Avengers: the Age of Ultron. But that's fine by Hiddleston, who has plenty of other projects to keep him busy.

What was your honest reaction when Joss Whedon told you Loki would not be in the second Avengers film?
My honest reaction was, "That's fine." I never wanted to overstay my welcome, and I've had such a good run with the character. I've enjoyed it so much. It was expected, to be honest, that Joss told me he wasn't going to put me in it. So yeah, my honest reaction was, "All right. Maybe it's time for me to play a few characters who don't have long black hair."

Between your turns at playing Loki, you've also been working in some independent films and a ton of Shakespeare. How do you approach jumping between so many diverse projects?
I honestly love doing them all; it's really true. I get so many different things from each. I've never wanted to impose limits on my work. I never wanted to be just the Shakespeare guy and I certainly never wanted to be just the superhero guy or even the indie kid. I should be so lucky, frankly, that I get to do any of these things.

Unconventional song covers

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

All three of this week's tracks are covers—but they're not exactly what you'd call tributes

No Woman No Drive/Alaa Wardi

With more Saudi women openly defying the country's ban on them driving, local star Alaa Wardi offers his support by rewriting a Bob Marley classic.

jIyIntaHvIS not qajegh/A Couple of Klingons

No, that title isn't a typo.

If you're going to Rickroll your friends, why not do it in Klingon? I'm sure this song had the High Council rolling in the aisles back on Qo'noS.

Sail/A Tesla Coil

Tesla Coils can provide endless fun, especially when harnessed to create music. Still, I wouldn't try this at home.

Video game review

Beyond: Two Souls

System. PlayStation 3

Rated. Mature 17+

Ellen Page and Willem DaFoe star in this complex journey through the lifetime of a woman with supernatural powers. Page's remarkable motion-captured acting adds an emotional weight few games deliver.

A global helltrek, just for the fun of it

Worst. Person. Ever. Douglas Coupland's new novel takes readers on a boozy, sex-filled romp with a foul-mouthed cameraman — earnest literary critics, try to relax

MATT LAFORGE
matt.laforge@metronews.ca

Douglas Coupland is Canada's official Cool Guy. He earned the title not only because he creates cool things — books of fiction, reportage, and biography; cultural commentary; visual art; sculpture; furniture — but also because, unlike, say, Drake or those guys who started VICE magazine, he plies his various trades here, in Canada, without apologizing for where he lives.

He simply, humbly, writes, sculpts, designs and collates from his base in Vancouver, telling us about our country and about the world as it's currently lived in. He works hard and produces material constantly. It's a fortunate thing that one of our culture's closest and most versatile observers is also one of its exemplars.

Coupland's newest novel, his 14th, is Worst. Person. Ever., a lewd, rude globe-trotting picaresque that follows the eponymous scoundrel, a singularly profane television cameraman named Raymond Gunt, on a calamitous sex-, booze- and four-letter-word-fuelled helltrek from London to L.A. to Honolulu to Micronesia.

Raymond, described on the book jacket as "a living, walking, talking, hot steaming pile of pure id," chases chemical and sexual pleasure with abandon, leers unself-consciously at every woman in his field of vision and frequently fantasizes about literally enslaving his fellow man. If nothing else, it's the perfect gag gift for the clergyperson on your Christmas list. I recently talked to Coupland, via email, about the book.

A theme in your fiction that goes all the way back to generation X and that is present in Worst. Person. Ever. is the human need to turn life into story. What is the difference, if any, between telling yourself stories about your life and telling yourself lies?
I think in this case it's the difference between how others see you and how you really are. Self-delusion is always funny.

Raymond Gunt tells the reader that he's charitable, understanding, worldly, open-minded and peace-loving. But his conduct, to put it mildly, suggests otherwise. Why do you think he — an impulse-driven guy who lives to party and get laid — claims so insistently that he's broad-minded and selfless?
Simple: He thinks it will somehow get him laid.

You tweeted a link to the Guardian's negative review of W.P.E., saying that the review's author "took the bait." What did you mean by that?
She took it at face value and actually thought the book was being put forth as literature — and then reviewed it as such. I mean, how fricking clueless can you be? It's a fun risqué read and seeks to be nothing more.

Much of your past work is breezy and funny but, at least as I read it, intends to rise to the level of serious art. What made you want to do something with lower esthetic stakes?
Fun! No, seriously: fun. Really. Fun.

Speaking of fun — W.P.E. has a lot of cursing and locker-roomish sex talk and a decent amount of violence. Are there any people who you think shouldn't read the book?
Not my call. But in the same way that you probably wouldn't leave martinis lying around your house, you probably might not leave W.P.E. around either.

Who's the worst person ever in real life?
That I've met in person? The person who Raymond is modelled on — an English cameraman at a shoot I did in Los Angeles in 1993.

David Arquette ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

David Arquette could use a top-notch PR handler right about now

David Arquette drunk-dialled the Howard Stern Show last night, and wow did he say some stuff. Highlights included backhanded compliments to Hitler.

"Listen, listen, listen — I've gotta say something on the N-word later — but Hitler played the game very well. He did. Listen, yeah, he played his game very well. He convinced a lot of people to play his f–king evil game. He played the game really well, but he was playing the wrong game."

Luckily he didn't manage to make it to whatever he had to say about the N-word, but he did happen to refer to Coco, his daughter with Courteney Cox, as his "first kid."

Wait, does that mean he had other kids? When? David didn't answer when Howard asked him, just "sort of wheezed and mumbled, giving no direct answer," as HowardStern.com puts it.

Arquette seemed dimly aware that things weren't going so hot. "Listen I'm going to be brutally honest with you and if that means tomorrow I have to get sober, I will get sober. I've been going on this whole Mayan thing lately. ... Are you with me? So, let's play the right game."

Yes, let's. The non-Hitler game. And in Arquette's case, maybe the "Just seltzer water for me, thanks," game.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

The celebs who creep us out the most

Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Sitting around the slightly rotten office jack-o'-lantern, on Halloween day while popping sour candies into our mouths, we asked our fellow Metro staffers which celebrity scared them the most. Read it now — if you dare. Bwahahahahahahahaha!

Raquel Welch
We're pretty sure Raquel Welch is one of the Tupperware moms from the tv series Eerie, Indiana — the kind that sleep in Tupperware coffins to stay fresh. She doesn't seem to be aging. See photo for evidence.

Bruce Jenner
What he's done to his once-handsome face is more gasp-inducing than watching The Conjuring.

Steve Buscemi's mouth
Look, we love the guy, but you really wouldn't want to brush up against his grill in a dark alley, would you?

Mel Gibson
What has he been up to since his anti-Semetic rant? We'd be spooked to venture into his basement at this point. Dude is probably working on something he wants no one to see.

Taylor Swift
We're not going to lie, it keeps us up at night worrying about what pretty young man-thing she'll set her blond succubus sights on next. Boys beware.

James Franco
Nobody should have that much energy and accomplish that many different things. It's terrifying. We're scared of what he'll decide to add to his resumé next — brain surgery? Rocket science? A human centipede made entirely of his comedy mafia bros? (Actually, we'd like to see that.)

Ashton Kutcher
What deal with the devil did that guy do? Highest paid actor on TV? Check. Mila Kunis as a girlfriend? Check. Signing over his soul to el diablo is the only explanation.

Justin Bieber

Justin's new hobby? Vandalism

Justin Bieber has apparently found a new activity to amuse himself — graffiti. The Canadian pop star posted several photos to Instagram of himself engaged in his "new hobby" while on tour, spraying city walls with crude cartoons and messages. On one wall, he's seen writing, "R.I.P. Pac," though it's unclear if he's honouring Tupac Shakur or his recently deceased hamster, which he named after the late rapper — or both.

Michael Fassbender

Acne and 'unfortunate' hair: Michael was a normal-looking teen

Michael Fassbender apparently hasn't been keeping up with popular opinion, because he doesn't think he's all that attractive. "I've never really thought of myself as good-looking. I think of myself as, you know, all right," he tells the U.K. edition of Elle magazine. "I used to have bad acne as a teenager, so all of this is a bonus now, the fact that I don't have pimples anymore. And my hair was also, you know, unfortunate."

Diwali fave will light up your taste buds

Palak Paneer. Puréed spinach, yogurt and, for a local twist, Canadian paneer cheese make this dish a nutritional delight

Diwali, a five-day festival of lights originating in India and celebrated around the world, will begin Sunday.

To mark the victory of good over evil, revellers light lanterns around the home, set off fireworks outside and create design patterns called rangoli on the floor using coloured powders or sand.

Food also plays an important role with families coming together to enjoy a savoury meal and share sweets.

To join in the celebration, make a simple and quick version of Palak Paneer, glowing with the warm, spicy flavours of cumin, coriander and chili powder. It cooks up quickly and pairs with a side of warm naan bread or Basmati rice,

1. In a large, deep skillet, heat butter and oil over medium-high heat until butter melts. Add onions and garlic; sauté about 2 minutes or until tender. Stir in coriander, chili powder and cumin; sauté 30 seconds or until fragrant; stirring well to prevent spices from burning.

2. Stir in puréed spinach, yogurt and salt; reduce heat to medium-low and cook covered for 10 minutes or until it starts to bubble. Stir in paneer; cook covered 6 minutes or until paneer softens and is cooked through. Give it a final stir and serve warm. DAIRYGOODNESS.CA

Ingredients

- 2 tbsp (30 ml) butter
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) vegetable oil
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 3 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 tsp (5 ml) ground coriander
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) chili powder
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) ground cumin
- 1 package (300 g) frozen spinach, thawed and puréed
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) plain yogurt whisked until smooth
- Salt to taste
- 12 oz (350 g) paneer, cut into bite-sized pieces (about 2 cups/500 ml)

LIQUID ASSETS

Do you pooh-pooh Australian table wines? If so, I can't blame you. Though offering some of the wine world's most popular brands, the juice from Down Under has become repetitive.

There is plenty of good news. This time last year, I was on a three-week Aussie odyssey and had my glass filled with oodles of mind-blowing wines that are now arriving across Canada.

South Australia's McLaren Vale has perplexed me. Best known for its fuller-bodied reds (especially shiraz), I've often found many of them lacking in that punch of flavour that makes a good wine great.

I'm betting its winemakers recognized that.

On my tour, I found an invigorated region and was soon populating my tasting notebook with the words "exciting" and "innovative."

Chapel Hill 2011 Parson's Nose Shiraz ($19.99) is a perfect example of this new wave flowing from McLaren Vale. Named for an ironstone chapel built on the winery's property in 1865, it's an old school shiraz with a thick, plummy body and black, anise spice finish that makes it ideal for a juicy steak, or anything up-front and beefy. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Coming up: Whistler Cornucopia

Mark your calendars for the start of Whistler's food and wine festival. Score tickets early for this slope-side oenophile extravaganza that takes over this mountainside town. You don't have to be wine-savvy to enjoy the abundance of seminars, gala events, dinners, tastings and parties. This year's festival features a new lineup of events, focused on health. Find more info at whistler.com. The event takes place Thursday to Sunday, Nov. 17 at various venues.

Tealicious

Raise your pinky and get ready to channel your inner royal on Saturday and head over to the False Creek Community Centre to check out the Vancouver Tea Festival. Hosted by The Vancouver Tea Society, plenty of tea vendors will be on hand with samples. Learn about fair trade teas, grab tea cocktail recipes, partake in education sessions and tea ceremonies, and more. Find top teas for your health, score tips, and maybe grab a few early Christmas presents while you're at it. Visit vancouverteafestival.ca.

Opening soon: Craft Beer Market

The iconic Salt Building is all but ready to showcase its big reveal on Thursday as the new home of Vancouver Craft Beer Market at 85 West 1st Ave. This expansive space has been completely gutted and expertly revamped to create a massive beer hall/casual restaurant featuring Canada's largest selection of draft beer. The locally sourced, sustainable menu offerings promise to tempt hungry guests. Not into the brew? Don't worry, there will be a dozen different wines to whet your whistle too. Visit craftbeermarket.ca.

Diwanna check this out?

Join the Diwali Celebration Society for the 10th Anniversary of Diwali Fest (formerly Vancouver Celebrates Diwali) that runs until Nov. 8. This annual South Asian cultural arts festival celebrates the Diwali holiday and is intended for all cultures and communities. Over the past several years, the event has grown exponentially — drawing in crowds of more than 7,000 people who partake in free performances, activities and more. Visit diwalifest.ca.

Second location: Chewies Steam & Oyster Bar

With their successful Kitsilano locale drawing a consistent crowd (not to mention consistently great accolades), Chewies is set to open the doors of their second location in the heart of Coal Harbour at 1055 West Hastings any day now. Look for a menu featuring plenty of shellfish goodness as well as top-notch cocktails, a vast selection of wines and local craft beer. Visit chewies.ca.

Last chance: Fright Night

Halloween may have come and gone, but serious thrill-seekers can still get their ghoulish fix for the season at Fright Night. Work up the courage and try not to scream too loudly. Be sure to check out the multiple haunted houses packed with twisted characters. Pay a visit to the Asylum, stumble your way through Darkness and cringe at Car-N-Evil. A selection of rides will be open, or you can check out a Freak Show and The Monsters of Schlock. The event runs until Saturday. Visit pne.ca.

FABULOUS HAIR COLOUR FOR LESS AT DOC FOLLICLES

Ready for a mid-fall hair transformation? The pros at Doc Follicles barbershop for men and women can help you make it possible without breaking the bank.

Bring in the coupon in the Doc Follicles ad to save $10 off a $50 colour job, including the foil highlight package.

"Fall is a time of change and experimentation," says John Laverock, veteran hairstylist and owner of Doc Follicles. "We wanted to be able to offer our customers the opportunity to try a colour they might not have done before, but have always wanted to do."

Located next to Brighouse SkyTrain Station in Richmond, Doc Follicles offers salon-style cuts and colour at a fraction of the cost of a high-end salon. Haircuts are all $18 or less.

Edgy cuts include the bobby (a standard-length bob for $18), the shaggy (longer and layered for $14) and the leveller (a one-length trim for long hair at $18).

DALLAS EVENTS INC./SHUTTERSTOCK

Colour choices run from gently sun-kissed with "Touched" for $25, to multiple layers of colour with "Psychadelic" at $50.

"We're a no-nonsense shop," Laverock says. "We're all about delivering professionalism and quality. Great cuts and colour, period."

Canucks set to retire Bure's No. 10

Saturday will be Pavel Bure's day.

The Vancouver Canucks will retire his No. 10 jersey when they host the Toronto Maple Leafs at Rogers Arena on Saturday afternoon.

Game time is for 4:20 p.m. The Canucks sent out a release Thursday afternoon, urging fans to get in their seats by 3:45 p.m. for the Bure ceremony.

Bure is scheduled to speak to reporters Friday, and then again following the jersey-retirement ceremony.

Bure, dubbed the Russian Rocket for his blazing speed on the ice, was arguably the most exciting player in Canucks history.

He began his career in Vancouver in 1991, spending seven seasons with the Canucks before he was traded to the Florida Panthers.

During his time here, he recorded back-to-back 60-goal seasons and was the Canucks' leading scorer during the team's run to the 1994 Stanley Cup final.

The Leafs come to town having won three games in a row. They currently sit atop the Atlantic Division with a 10-4 record.

The Leafs' visit also brings rookie defenceman Morgan Rielly back to his hometown.

Rielly grew up in West Vancouver and played minor hockey at the Hollyburn Country Club.

At the age of 19, Toronto's first-round pick, fifth overall, in the 2012 draft has five assists in 12 games with the Leafs.

Robinson has backing for head coaching gig

MLS. Players have spoken highly of the Whitecaps' current assistant coach

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

With the search for the next Vancouver Whitecaps head coach now on, a pair of players were singing the praises of Carl Robinson, an assistant with the club.

Two days after the club announced it would not be renewing the contract of Martin Rennie, players Camilo Sanvezzo, the MLS scoring champ, and Russell Teibert, the Whitecaps' premier Canadian player on the squad, believed Robinson should at least be considered for the now-vacant head coaching position.

"Carl Robinson's been fantastic to me ever since I got here and I really respect him," said Teibert, following the club's final media availability for players on Thursday.

"Even when times were tough, he was always the one building me up and even when times were going well, he was the one saying, 'You've got to come back down to earth, you need to work on things, you're not there yet.'

"He is really honest with every individual player and you cannot not respect the man because he's been there, he's done it."

Sanvezzo, who scored a league-best 22 goals, winning the MLS Golden Boot, has also spoken highly of Robinson's influence.

"He knows how to talk with the players; he knows how to give them confidence, too," said Sanvezzo.

MLS experience has been one of the qualities club president Bob Lenarduzzi, as well as centre back and captain Jay DeMerit, has pointed to as a priority for the successful candidate.

That was something Rennie didn't have on his resumé.

"You look ... at the intangibles of what a manager has to bring and most of them were here," said DeMerit.

"The only thing that wasn't involved in that was MLS experience, so you look, maybe, as that needs to be the next-level things."

Captain Jay DeMerit says it's imperative that the Whitecaps' next head coach has MLS experience. Some of his teammates think the team may not have to look far for the right candidate. JONATHAN HAYWARD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

World Series win caps off tragic year in Beantown

Boston Strong.
Marathon runner finds bittersweet ending in Red Sox victory

For fans, players and political leaders who celebrated the Red Sox's World Series title with cries of "Boston Strong," the championship provided a jubilant finish to a season that was shadowed nearly from the start by the April bombings at the Boston Marathon.

The morning after he cheered the victory inside Fenway Park, Ed Carlson returned Thursday to the marathon finish line he had crossed months earlier, 20 minutes before the bombs went off, and then had scrambled to find his children in the ensuing chaos.

"It was quite a year," said Carlson, 51, of Princeton, Mass. "To be at the marathon and then to be there for the World Series — I still tear up thinking about it."

The success of the Red Sox, who finished last in their division only a year ago, became a welcome surprise and eventually a symbol of resilience for a city recovering from the twin bombings that killed three people and wounded more than 260. People periodically stopped around the finish line on Thursday morning to offer a solemn tribute.

Carlson, who was taking in the scene with his 17-year-old daughter, wore a new Red Sox World Series Champions baseball hat along with the same blue and yellow marathon jacket he wore to every Sox game he attended over the season. At Wednesday night's game, he had his marathon medal in his pocket. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CFL. Harris, Logan hope to help Lions grind out another win on the ground

In time for Halloween, and with the CFL playoffs less than two weeks away, the B.C. Lions seemed to have found what running back Andrew Harris calls the "two-headed monster."

Last week, Harris and fellow back Stefan Logan rushed for a combined 197 yards and three touchdowns — Logan had one along the ground and Harris had two through the air — in the Lions' win over the Edmonton Eskimos.

The hope is this newly created beast can prove to be just as scary against the visiting Calgary Stampeders, when the two teams tangle in the season finale at BC Place Stadium on Friday.

"We definitely want to build off that," said Harris earlier this week.

"I think the week of work we put in together and the way the (offensive line) is playing right now, it's definitely feasible."

Harris, the Leos' non-import running back, has endured a tough season. He's been bumped as the premier player in the backfield, with the addition of the speedy Logan earlier this month.

Harris has expressed frustration a few times, as the running lanes just haven't been opened up the way they have in past years and, as a result, not only have his individual rushing numbers dipped, but the Leos' running game as a whole has become a major source of concern.

B.C.'s ground game came to life last week when Stefan Logan rushed for 121 yards against Edmonton. THE CANADIAN PRESS

But last week's showing from both rushers has provided somewhat of a renewed enthusiasm in a run game that was once teetering on non-existence through a large portion of the season.

"The last game was exciting and you feed off each other," said Harris.

NFL. Shanahan calls Haynesworth 'lazy'

Mike Shanahan levelled a scathing critique at Albert Haynesworth on Thursday, saying the former Redskins defensive lineman was "lazy" and had a "lack of passion" and "lack of character."

The Washington Redskins coach was responding to comments made this week by Haynesworth, who told Tennessee Sports Radio that Shanahan is "conniving," self-centred and will run quarterback Robert Griffin III "into the ground."

Asked for his reaction, Shanahan began his answer and then stopped himself and started over — because he wanted to "say it the right way."

Then he hammered home a zinger.

"When you don't get along with somebody as a head coach or an assistant coach, it usually falls into one of those areas — lazy, lack of passion, and a lot of times lack of character," Shanahan said. "And he fits all three."

Haynesworth signed a $100-million free-agent contract with the Redskins in 2009, but he and Shanahan clashed frequently after the coach arrived in Washington a year later. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fins' safety dance beats Bengals

Cameron Wake sacked Andy Dalton for a safety with 6:38 left in overtime, and the Miami Dolphins beat the Cincinnati Bengals 22-20 on Thursday night.

On third-and-10 from the 8, Dalton retreated to the goal-line and was tackled by Wake coming up the middle for the third overtime safety in NFL history.

Mike Nugent kicked a 54-yard field goal with 1:24 remaining in regulation to put the Bengals ahead, but Miami answered with a 50-yard drive, and Caleb Sturgis made a 44-yard field goal with 11 seconds left to force overtime.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You may be envious of a rival's success but it's a waste of time. If you compare yourself to others, you will always find someone who has done better than you. Compare yourself to who you were yesterday.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
A loved one may be giving you a hard time and you may have every right to hit back at them but is that such a good idea? According to the planets, you should let it go and let them get past this negative phase.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Don't let yourself get upset about little things. The Sun's link to retrograde Mercury in the work and wellbeing area of your chart today warns you to watch your temper.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
There are so many good things going on in your world that you may worry you don't really deserve it all — but you do. The planets are simply rewarding you for past efforts you made on other people's behalf.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Make the most of what you have and don't worry that others may have more than you. Life is not a game where the one with the most wins. Life is a process to be enjoyed.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
It would be unwise to reach a decision today without seeking advice from people you trust. With Mercury, your ruler, moving retrograde you may not be seeing things straight.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Try not to get annoyed with the varied fools you have to deal with today. They can't help it if, compared to you, they don't have a clue what's going on. If anything, feel sorry for them.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Mercury in your sign makes your mind sharper than usual but because it links to slow-moving Pluto today you may find it hard to reach any lasting conclusions. That's good, as most likely they'll be wrong.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
If there is something you are hiding and you will no doubt be dismayed when it becomes public knowledge. Don't be embarrassed though, it's OK.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You are more than impatient with people who move slowly. However, the more you try to hurry them along, the more they drag their feet. What can you do about it? Nothing. Perhaps you should move more slowly yourself.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Resist the urge to make decisions about your social or professional situation. With mind planet Mercury in the career area of your chart linked to unpredictable Uranus they will most likely be wrong.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
It would appear that a friend is in an argumentative mood and would like nothing better than to engage you in the kind of debate you cannot win. Give it a miss! SALLY BROMPTON
